Dana Perino explains why President Trump is nominating Amy Coney Barrett to be the next associate justice on the Supreme Court. DANA PERINO, ABC NEWS, HOST: We have a Supreme Court nominee. President Trump is expected to announce his pick today and it could be nominated Amy Barrett, who she is. Amy Barrett is a Notre Dame law professor who sits on the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. She is a mother of two who has clerked for Judge Robert E. Dow and Chief Justice John G. Roberts and she is a prosecutor and a judge on a federal appeals court. The nominee will be one of the few women on the court and her place on the bench will be particularly surprising. The president of Notre Dame said that they are making Amy Barrett. They are calling her an extraordinary person, and he says that she is a woman of impeccable faith and personal strength. And he is reportedly calling her Dr. Barrett and Dr. Barrett is not a doctor, and it's not until you hit the end of the quote that you see that she's an associate justice. That's a very important distinction. She's not a Supreme Court justice. But Senator Dianne Feinstein, who is the ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, says that she does not take her seat, Amy Barrett will not be confirmed by the Senate. (BEGIN VIDEO CLIP) SEN. DIANNE FEINSTEIN (D-CA), RANKING MINORITY MEMBERS: Judge Barrett has refused to provide any information on her views of the law or the Constitution. I cannot see how she could sit as a judge on any court anywhere. (END VIDEO CLIP) PERINO: And that is the backdrop for all of this. Let's bring in from the White House, Abby Huntsman and she's with President Trump now. What's going on with this nominee? ABBY HUNTSMAN, ABC NEWS: Yes, Dr. Barrett was born in Louisiana. She was raised in Wisconsin. She was a member of the Catholic Church and she spent a lot of time in that church. Her family moved to South Bend for law school, her law school. She served as a law clerk and worked as a public defender in South Bend and served as a law clerk in the Notre Dame law school. So, I'm very familiar with her.

If I try to upload a file that was not encrypted, an error occurs saying that the decryption failed. I can't find anything about this on the Web, but I think that the error comes from the file transferred as it is encrypted. Here is my concern: Is it possible to use this plugin for other purposes, such as to upload a file before encrypting it (in the app)? If the file gets encrypted after being uploaded, how to make it encrypted first? A: Ok, I found a solution: It seems you have to decrypt the file you want to upload, and then encrypt the file and upload it. And then, in order to make sure that everything is encrypted, you have to compare the two files. is very simple, as far as the algorithm itself is concerned, but
