The feature was first introduced in FIFA 19 and was later re-introduced in FIFA 20 as a “humanified” or “human simulation” feature. FIFA 22 will take it to the next level by giving players more tools to make plays and to improve their playmaking ability. Unlike the previous versions of FIFA, where players used player likenesses from real-life players, FIFA 22 introduces “Player Voices,” which are unique to each of the top players. Previously, the real-life players would have the same voice, making it difficult to distinguish between them. Like in the previous versions, World-Class team players will “chime in” by announcing their playmaking tendencies. For example, Neymar will have distinct “kicks” that are triggered by his playmaking decisions. Now, any player who is a world-class player can have their own “chime in” that will bring out their playmaking tendencies. We recently saw this new edition of “Cards on the Table” mode come to light during the EA Play stream. Here’s a look at what it is: FIFA Fans will also be getting a special edition of the “FIFA Fans Update” available for the Xbox One and PlayStation 4. FIFA 22 introduces a new FIFA Ultimate Team mode called “Rivals” and several “FIFA Ultimate Team” cards will now be usable in the new mode. Here are a few more details on the “FIFA Rivals” mode: INTRODUCING FIFA FUTU Rivals is our take on the biggest rivalry in the sport. Working alongside the game’s brand new motion capture technology, players will feel what it’s like to be on the pitch, even if they don’t have access to a controller and instead use a traditional on-screen keyboard. The match views in Rivals allow us to take the camera at a unique angle and give you a level of immersion that you
