Our mission is to translate basic scientific discoveries and new technologies to innovative clinical research programs that improve the care of patients with urologic diseases. Since the Urology Institute was organized in 2009, it has made significant progress towards attaining this goal. Over the last 5 years, we have attracted faculty from numerous disciplines, including surgery, laboratory research, clinical studies, basic sciences, and public health, have established a strong cadre of investigators, and have developed a dynamic and successful research program. Specific aims for this U01 proposal include: 1) To create a proactive, interactive and influential research network to address high priority clinical and translational urologic research issues. As an expanding group of urologic investigators at UAB, we have already established multiple collaborative research projects and scientific opportunities that support this aim. 2) To obtain strong infrastructure support to enhance the research environment in the Urology Institute at UAB. The Urology Institute is comprised of 3 Research Cores and 2 Pilot and Exploratory Studies. Through this proposal we seek to enhance the Research Core capabilities (Core C, Urology Biostatistics Core) and Pilot and Exploratory Studies (P/E) capabilities to assist UAB Urology investigators in the design, implementation and analysis of their studies. 3) To recruit outstanding clinician scientists with expertise in urologic malignancies and transplantation who are dedicated to developing innovative clinical and translational research programs that will improve the care of patients with urologic malignancies and transplantation.
